Wimbledon is more than a tennis tournament - it is an iconic British tradition. First held in 1877, the world's oldest championship is as much about rain delays and white uniforms as it is about world-class sport.

Another of our cherished rituals is afternoon tea, which comes together with Wimbledon perfectly.

We have drawn on the spirit of Britishness, as we nod to those lawn courts, long rallies, and the simple pleasure of sitting down with something sweet as the nation watches on.
